The flow chart below shows how Farm Bureau policy begins at the county and eventually becomes county, Ohio and American Farm Bureau policy.

How is Farm Bureau Policy Developed?

County Farm Bureau policy is the foundation for programs and activities. The Policy Development Program gives Farm Bureau members the opportunity to shape policies that give direction for the following program year. County Farm Bureau Policy Development Committees in-depth the problems facing the county and agriculture. The County FB Policy Development Committee takes the information obtained from extensive research and formulates proposed policy recommendations and presents them to the entire county Farm Bureau membership at the County Farm Bureau Annual Meeting. Approved policy then becomes the "marching orders" for the County Farm Bureau Board of Trustees.
