Ohio Farm Organizations Unite in Support of Sherrod Brown for Senate Agriculture Committee Chair

With razor-thin margins, soaring fertilizer and other input costs, and an urgent need to expand domestic and international markets, farmers are facing tough challenges.

At such a critical time, we need someone with a proven record of standing up for farmers to chair the Senate Ag Committee. We believe Senator-Elect Sherrod Brown is the right person for the job.

Brown has spent nearly 20 years serving on the Senate Agriculture Committee, helping shape multiple Farm Bills and working directly with Ohio farmers to address the challenges affecting their livelihoods. His work on issues ranging from year-round E15 to expanding markets for Ohio's crops and livestock has earned him recognition from the agricultural community.

Sherrod understands that good agricultural policy starts with listening to farmers and addressing the challenges they face. Many of us have sat down with him over the years and had honest conversations about the current reality of agriculture. He knows what's at stake, and we believe he has the experience, relationships, and determination to get things done in Washington.

The undersigned Ohio agricultural organizations are united in supporting Sherrod Brown as the next chair of the U.S. Senate Agriculture Committee. We urge his peers in the U.S. Senate to put his experience to work for farmers across this country who feed, fuel, and clothe our nation.
